BULLETIN:
Paris, March 24.—The official statement issued after the meeting of the supreme war council this afternoon made no mention of the Hungarian situation. The only reference to the situation in Eastern Europe was the announcement that American proposals concerning the powers of the Tieschen commission which concerns Poland and Czechoslovakia were adopted. The future status of the German submarine cables was agreed upon by the council.

Copenhagen, March 24.—Germany cannot and will not sign a peace which involves the annexation of Danzig by Poland. President Ebert declared in a speech Sunday, a dispatch from Berlin says. The German president added that Germany could not give up West Prussia or part of Upper Silesia. Ebert spoke at a meeting called to protest against the annexation of Danzig by Poland. He declared that Germany was prepared to agree to the neutralization of the Vistula which would include Danzig as a free port.

Paris, March 24.—A conference of the premiers was called this morning for 3 o'clock this afternoon to argue for the program on the supreme council session at the end of the week. The news from Hungary and Poland was expected to spur the heads of the governments to military decisions of the first importance.

"Kid" Pershing Refuses To Let Fire Take The Joy Out Of His Life

(By HARRIETTE WHEATON)
Then John J. Pershing threw out his chest and let his presence be known. His means of recognition was a loud wailing. Unlike the general, to be sure, but it was the best method John J. had of getting some attention. Where was that little bed he had been sleeping in? Why all this sudden moving over to Grandma's house? It was too much for his 9-months-old mind. Something had happened and everyone looked depressed. So he just naturally thought it was time for him to cry.
John J. Pershing Cheeseman probably waited when he saw the family moving out of his happy home all in a hurry. But taking life as it is and not as it ought to be, Baby John was greatly attracted by the funny hats and those old rubber coats. And they kept running up and down the ladders and squirting water all over. And all the people were coming. Baby John was a fireman's ball, thinks Johnny.
"I wish somebody would come and play with me," he muses. "Wonder where my rattle is."
"Funny thing that what came of our house. I was getting kind of cold and I could hardly wiggle my little toe. Guess somebody thought he had to have to build a bigger fire than the stove would hold. It's nice and warm now, ain't it? Wish I had on my little fuzzy red hood, though. I love to use it when it rains. That would come over and pinch my cheek if I had it on."
"Oh well, it's a gay life. Gee, I only got one shoe on. And look at Helen. Why look at her? She's got a gown on under that blue coat. She ain't bombed her hair neither. Funny doings."
"Mamma and Papa Cheeseman look kind of blue too. Not many clothes on. They should get up earlier when they are going to have a party like this. Maybe it was a surprise. I wish a been, or else dress."
"There is the old kitchen stove they're bringing out. Wonder what they are keeping it for. I'm glad cause now maybe they'll fix my milk for breakfast. I'm terribly hungry. Oh and there is the three-legged table too. Guess it is time to eat. Wish I had something to chew on. But I haven't so I guess I'll go to sleep, instead. Goodbye."
Fire Burns; He Snoozes.
And Johnny snoozed. The fire burned on. The house disappeared. Sister Helen was having fun. She didn't know what it all meant. Father and Mother James Cheesman were thoughtfully worried. Where do we go from here, they wondered.
But Grandmother Cheesman solved the question. She had just accepted a position as matron at the Detention Hospital. She moved out and let her son and family move what there was to move from 327 St. Mary's avenue; to her home, 121 Elliot street, Springfield, Mass.
Baby John J. Pershing woke up an hour later over at Grandma's.
"This is pretty nice, ain't it?" he mused. "I didn't know we were going to come to visit Grandma. Guess it is time for me to be dressed. Wonder where my clothes are. Wow-wow-wow. There, that ought to raise someone. Here comes Mamma now. Ah she just wrapped an old blanket around me. I cry, sonny, your clothes all burned up but musser will get you some more."
"So I have just been sitting here looking out the window for this old blanket. It isn't good but I have to keep busy at something."
"There comes someone now. Someone with a bundle of stuff on their arm."
"Oh boy, look at my new dress, all pretty white dress with lace around the neck. And a new pink coat, too. Wasn't that nice of that lady. I didn't know it was my birthday. Maybe it is Christmas. Wish someone would bring me another shoe now. Sister has a new dress on too, but she has to go bareheaded yet. I wish she had a hat."
Father Henry Willmann, she called him; who brought this pretty new dress. And he said he would come back as soon as the Assn. of Charities, Philadelphia, who had won the women's national championship in Chicago in 1915.

GOOD ROADS TAG DAY NETS $337.89

Tag day Saturday was a great success. The sum of $337.89 was collected and turned over to the Rock County Good Roads association for concrete highways. George Woodruff, president, speaking for the organization, wishes to thank the people who contributed to the cause. He is well pleased with the results of tag day. When it is taken into consideration that the boys and girls taggers worked only six hours so that they could attend the basketball game, the results of tag day are surprising. Great credit is due the youthful workers for their accomplishment. A complete report of the tag day was tabulated at the Chamber of Commerce Saturday afternoon as follows:
Currency $70.00
Gold $17.00
Half dollars $4.50
Quarters $7.75
Dimes $8.00
Nickels $7.24
Fonities $337.89

Reasonable Prices For All Products in Near Future Seen by Mr. Peek.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 24.—Cheaper food in the near future was predicted today by Chairman Peek of the department of commerce industrial board as a result of conference with food administration officials in New York.
Mr. Peek said there had been general misunderstanding of a recent statement by Mr. Hoover that wheat might go to $2.50 a bushel, and added that the billion dollar grain appropriation was made by congress to enable the public to get wheat products at reasonable prices as well as to make good the guarantee to the producer.
With wheat prices reasonable, Mr. Peek said, reasonable prices of other products could be expected because wheat was the barometer of the food trade.
Peek Makes Statement.
Mr. Peek and William R. Ritter, a member of the board, returned from New York this morning where they went to secure from officials of the food administration and its grain corporation a statement of their policy on food prices.
"Food administration officials felt that it was unfortunate that there had been such general misunderstanding of Mr. Hoover's statement that we might see wheat at $2.50 a bushel," Hoover said "might."

COUNCIL MAY VOTE NEW TRAFFIC SIGNS

Auto owners are strictly observing the ordinance against parking cars in front of theaters, said Chief Gover this morning. In order to keep strangers advised of the ordinance it is hoped that signs may be erected in front of each theater in the near future. This matter will probably be taken up through the aid of the regular meeting of the council tonight.
Several other matters of general interest are expected to come before tonight's meeting. It is probable that some action in regard to an appropriation for the labor bureau will be taken.

NEW WAR DECLARED: SITUATION IS HELD GRAVE

STATE OF HOSTILITIES BEGUN BETWEEN HUNGARY AND ENTENTE POWERS.

CZECH-SLOVAKIA PRESIDENT QUILTS

Fierce Rioting is Reported in Budapest as Bolshevism Gains Headway.

Bulletin:
London, March 24.—A bolshevik army of seventy thousand men has crossed the river Dniester south of Lemberg, according to a Zurich dispatch. The army is said to be commanded by Major Georgy and is composed mainly of Hungarians and Bulgarians who were prisoners of war in Russia.

Washington, March 24.—Dispatches to the state department today from Belgrade said the new Hungarian bolshevik government had ordered the beginning of hostilities against the entente last Friday night. No information was given as to whether operations actually had been undertaken.

Copenhagen, March 24.—A Czechoslovak army has been sent against Hungary, according to an official report received in Vienna and forwarded here.

Copenhagen, March 24.—T. G. Massaryk, president of Czechoslovakia has resigned, according to a report from Berlin.

The question of the barrier which the peace conference intends to erect against the spread of Bolshevism into the former central powers has been sharply to the front as a result of the situation in Hungary where bolshevik elements have seized the power and declared that a state of war exists between Hungary and the entente powers.

Premiers of all the allied states were called to meet in special session in Paris at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and it was reported that important military decisions would be taken at a meeting of the supreme council at 4 o'clock regarding the situation in Hungary and Poland. Premier Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Pichon had the floor on Sunday regarding Hungary and it is indicated by Paris newspapers that action looking to military movements was taken.

The newspaper writers see the situation as serious and as one calling for military action. They express the belief that Germany may be behind the bolshevik movement and that defeating the work of the peace conference. Some commentators in London see the Hungarian situation as partly the result of the delay in the peace conference in bringing about a preliminary peace.

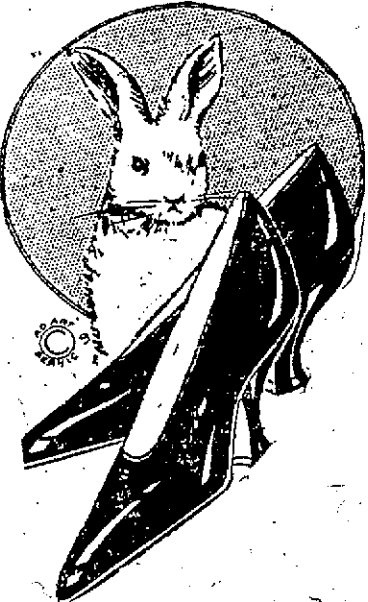

A report through Switzerland to Paris says that Karl Gustav, an independent socialist, has been taken to Danzig. The German foreign minister, to inquire into the question of closer relations between Germany and the soviet government.

Rioting is reported to have occurred in Budapest but there is no reliable information regarding the entente troops which have been in Hungary for several months. Two French divisions are at Budapest, and Serbian and Rumanian troops are available for use in Hungary should their services be needed. The exact nature of the bolshevik movement is not in absolute control and has been in wireless communication with Premier Lenin at Moscow. In addition it has called on the workers of adjoining countries to rise against their governments.

It is understood in Paris, according to one report, that the three Polish divisions in France will be shipped on to Danzig. The allied proposal to use Danzig as the port of debarkation for these troops was one of the main causes for the breaking off by the Germans of negotiations with the allied commission in Poland. German newspapers have strongly denounced the proposal to give Poland the port of Danzig and a corridor to it. Vienna. The extremists are active in control. Reports from Czechoslovakia, where the bolshevik movement is reported to be strong, are meager.

CZECHO-SLAVS MARCH ON AUSTRIA AS NEW WAR IS DECLARED

Reports that the Russian Bolsheviks had large forces of troops in Galicia ready to advance into Hungary still lack confirmation from reliable sources. The Bolsheviks, however, are week were to the effect that the anti-Bolshevik Ukrainians were driving the Bolsheviks back in the region of the Pripiet marshes northeast of Lemberg which the Poles were forced to give up to the Ukrainians.

Washington Is Waived
Washington, March 24.—Concern was evident today in official and diplomatic quarters here over the news of the seizure of government in Hungary by a Bolshevik regime.

No one in authority would discuss what measures might be adopted by the associated powers. With President Wilson and Secretary Lansing in Paris the attitude of the American government toward any measures that may be proposed will be determined and announced there.

Although the news from Hungary caused a sensation, it did not come altogether as a surprise. For weeks unrest in Hungary has tended toward Bolshevism. This has not been entirely due to shortage of food. The problem of industry and raw materials to give employment to workmen is of equal importance and other economic problems are involved.

One feature of the situation which is attracting much attention here is the plight of Rumania. Rumania survived an attack of Bolshevism, it was pointed out today, but whether she can weather a second attack is regarded as a serious question.

With Hungary turned Bolshevik, Rumania will be two-thirds surrounded and it is believed that the Bolsheviks will devote every effort to bringing her under control.

BUDAPEST IS CALM
Basle, March 24.—Buda-pes was calm Saturday, according to advices reaching here. Business was for the most part suspended, but the streets were animated and posters were displayed everywhere, appealing to the people to continue work.

The food commissioner has issued a proclamation saying: "As a result of the manner in which the entente acted, we have allied ourselves to the Soviet republics of Russia and the foreign representatives of the new Hungarian communistic government are received in accordance with Budapest."

GREETINGS SENT TO LENINE
Copenhagen, March 24.—Reports of wireless exchanges between Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevik premier of Russia, and the foreign representatives of the new Hungarian communistic government are received in accordance with Budapest.

Lenine was told that the Hungarian proletariat had seized power and had proclaimed a proletarian dictatorship. Greetings were sent to Lenine as "leader of the international proletariat" and expressing solidarity with the revolutionary movement.

Repeating, Lenine stated that he had submitted the Hungarian greeting to the Bolshevik congress at Moscow, which had received it with great enthusiasm. He added:

"To communicate between Moscow and Budapest and report on the military situation, it is necessary to maintain permanent wireless communication between the two cities," he concluded, by extending "communist greetings and a hand-shake."

VIENNA NOT SURPRISED
London, March 24.—The revolution in Hungary caused great excitement in Vienna, but did not surprise those who were aware of the true condition of affairs, says the Vienna correspondent of the Telegraph. He says the communists of Hungary have long been the real masters of the country and have only been awaiting an opportunity to get rid of Count Kaschov who is considered to have been never more than a figurehead.

The correspondent declares there are no elements in Hungary capable of making a stand against the extremists and that even in Czechoslovakia there are strong Bolshevik influences. He points out that experts agree there is grave danger of Bolshevism following the example of Hungary.

The situation is attributed by the correspondent to the failure of the peace conference at Paris to recognize the seriousness of the situation and to occur Budapest with entente troops. He says the only way to save the situation is to send American or British forces there, but adds:

"Where a battalion would have sufficed formerly a brigade would be necessary now."

Clemenceau Sees Pinchon
Paris, March 24.—Premier Clemenceau had a long conference with Stephen Pinchon, the foreign minister, yesterday on the Hungarian situation, which will come before the supreme council this morning when immediate steps will be taken, according to Marcel Hutin of the Echo de Paris.

It is understood that General Haller's Polish divisions will be sent at once to Danzig and landed whether the Germans like it or not. It is added that certain preparations already have been taken in such an eventuality.

Two French divisions are at Budapest and several Serbian divisions are at Belgrade ready to take the field and it is believed that with the Rumanians they are capable of meeting the situation.

Raymond Recouty, writing in the Figaro, states, on the other hand, that the divisions in question are of reduced strength, the Rumanians being absolutely without equipment. Such forces, scattered over hundreds of kilometers from Banat to Odessa, he says, and are quite insufficient to cope with the threat which everything shows is about to take definite shape.

Report Allied Disarmed
Berlin, March 24.—A special dispatch to the Freiheit announces the disarmament of entente troops at Budapest. It is unconfirmed, however, and appears questionable.

Situation Called Critical
Paris, March 24.—The situation is as serious as that which arose when the congress of Vienna learned of Napoleon's return from Elba. Tuesday is a hundred years ago, negotiators have provoked and have been surprised by destiny," writes St. Etienne in the Journal.

The problem before the council of ten today is not the fate of the German cables or the Tschern commission, but the imperative necessity of saving Poland and Rumania behind the watertight compartment which has collapsed," he continues. "Otherwise Germany, declaring herself alone in position to save western civilization, will lay down her own peace terms instead of those the allies propose to dictate to her or will threaten to take the lead in the Bolshevik movement."

This extract from an editorial accurately reflects the views of the foreign editors of French newspapers. Some may express reserve as to how far the movement is or is not inspired by Germany, but they generally agree in placing the principal blame for the events on the procrastination of the peace conference, and in insisting on immediate steps to fight Bolshevism.

Not Result of Note Berlin Says
Berlin, March 24.—Recent events at Budapest were not the result of the entente note outlining the new policy, but the result of the Russian army's victory over the Czechs, which says that the situation there was hopeless before the note was delivered. Communists were unable to ignore the German secretaries, according to the newspapers.

Mass demonstrations began last Wednesday when demands were made that every employed person receive a sum of five hundred crowns for relief, beside payment of house rent. A reduction of food prices to one-half, the newspaper declares that the revolution was impending when the entente note arrived and Count Michael Karolyi, the premier, issued a proclamation to represent himself as a friend of the proletariat.

"No One Can Tell Future."
Vienna, March 24.—Asked what effect Hungarian events would have on the political situation in Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia, the Austrian secretary for military affairs said today:

"If the entente treats us as it treats Hungary, no one can guarantee what will happen. A people is bound to desert its own self control. The entente, by a thoughtless decision might lose the bulwark against Bolshevism which German Austria really constitutes."

Anglo French Press Comment
London, March 24.—(Via Moscow)—Hungary's adoption of Bolshevism is regarded most seriously by the Anglo-French press, chiefly as endangering the efforts of the entente to build up the Rumanian, Polish and Czechoslovak states as bulwarks against German domination in Central Europe. All three states are menaced by advancing Bolshevik armies.

Karl Radek Released
Copenhagen, March 24.—Karl Radek, the leading Russian Bolshevik agent in Germany, who was arrested on February 13 in connection with the Spartacist uprising, has been released by the German government, according to a Berlin dispatch today.

This message reports fresh agitation by the German Spartacists coincident with the Hungarian revolution, reports that in these circumstances the release of Radek has created a bad impression.

One more war activity is passing into history after 22 months of existence. Local draft board for division No. 1, Rock county, is today packing its records to be sent to Washington headquarters. The office in the post office building will probably be kept open the remainder of the week, when the final page will be turned.

The board held its last meeting today. It is one of the 12 boards of the state which has worked entirely without pay during the strenuous days of the draft. Miss Julia Wright has served as clerk of the board. The Rev. Henry Willmann has been a willing volunteer helper.

These men, with their coats off and shirt sleeves rolled up, are today driving the nails that will close the story of their active work. WOMEN HEAR TALK ON COLONIZATION POLICY

An interesting lecture on the colonization policy of the different nations was given Saturday afternoon before the members of the Women's History class, by Prof. R. B. Way. He took up the subject of the policy of England, and said that she had stumbled along without having any consistent, clear cut policy in relation to her colonies.

"However," he said, "she had tried to replace anarchy with law, and had everywhere bettered the lot of the people." The speaker also pointed out the mistakes of the past, and the customs of the natives, rather than to destroy them, and had administered the colonies for the ultimate advantage of the people. He considered that England had improved the health conditions of her colonies, had brought in sanitation, and introduced the methods of finance formerly unknown to the natives.

Says Labor is Absorbing Question. He thought that the land policy and that of labor, were the absorbing questions in the colonization schemes of today. The experiment of the Dutch colony in the island of Java, which had been praised so highly was shown to be quite unwise, as the five laborers were compelled to labor almost in a state of slavery in the raising of cotton, he said.

The policy of Italy, and of France were touched upon, and the blundering concept of Germany in her experimental colonization work. Professor Way closed by saying that the big five which composed the League of Nations would stand solidly against allowing the unchanged Germans to govern more of the colonies of the world.

Reviews Child Welfare Work. Mrs. Lowth gave to the class by invitation, a resume of the work done in the county last spring in the Child Welfare work, when the babies of the county were weighed and measured. A resolution was passed by the class endorsing the plan of the Council of defense in advocating the employment of a county nurse.

The chairman of a program committee, Mrs. Charles Sutherland, said that the subjects which Professor Way had in mind for topics for another year's work, and also a list of speakers and subjects available from the university extension course. Action on the subject was postponed until another meeting.

Rubber Plantations.
In the past the world's supply of rubber has come chiefly from the Amazon. Today the demand is so great that Brazil supplies only about one-fourth of the product. The Malay peninsula, Ceylon, Sumatra, and of late the Philippine islands, have been cultivating rubber plantations extensively, and it has been discovered that rubber trees will grow almost anywhere along the equator where there is sufficient rainfall.

"OH, BOY!" NOT EVEN VERY, VERY NAUGHTY

"Oh Boy!" played at the Myers Sat. and Sunday nights, was the play his name would indicate, but not so "Oh Boyish," as its opportunities would have permitted. The difficulties of satisfactorily disposing of a wife, a midnight visitor, and a Quaker aunt offered the usual run of complications in the night scenes, and stopped just on the verge of being racy.
The lack of any good singers increased the "might-have-beens" in the popular musical numbers throughout the play. Lavinia Winn, playing the part of Jackie Sampson, and Harry Meyers as George Budd, made up the best singing pair but were not often thrown together. Theodore Wardfield as Lou Ellen Carter, had a quaint wining way as the bride who wanted to be just an old fashioned wife. Her singing, while not with the ease of training, was pleasing after one knew what to expect. Playing opposite her was George Budd, with whom she had eloped, she portrayed the part of the bride with a reserved anxiety that carried the part.
Lavinia Winn was filled with a nervous vitality which drew on her audience, and while not much for looks, she wore pretty clothes and altogether rather well fitted her bill.
The play started out in an individual and rollicking manner with the fly swatting opening but gradually passed into the domestic. The entrance of Jackie by the window, in hiding from the police, fell flat. The final entrance of the real Quaker aunt was short of its possibilities. The introduction of the "lemonade" could have been dispensed with to the betterment of the play.
A chorus of a little above the average for a road show helped along the musical scores. No good dancing was presented. The clothes of the chorus were real clothes in every instance. The dresses and otherwise worn by the Misses Ware and Winn deserve mention as attractive.
Miss Lora Sonderson, who led the chorus in a couple of numbers, might very effectively be given more opportunity in the play.
"An Old Fashioned Wife," and "Swing Time" were the most popular airs of the evening.
The valet with his pajama, Constable Simms with his blue pajama, crabs, Jim Marvin, with his blue pajama, and the club waiter with his "Nothing, Nothing," each added their bit to the fun of the play.

MYERS THEATRE.
Jack Norworth's chummy musical revue in two acts and sixteen scenes, with book and lyrics by Norworth and Bide Dudley and music by James Byrne, bearing the interesting title of "Odd&Ends," will come to the Myers theatre on Tuesday, March 25, fresh from triumphs in the east, where it has recently concluded record breaking runs in New York, Philadelphia and Boston, as well as an all summer run in Chicago, where it taxed the capacity of the Garrick theatre during the hottest summer ever known in that city.
Boyle Woolfolk, who through arrangement with Jack Norworth is presenting the piece on tour, has secured an able cast of principals headed by the inimitable Max Bloom, who has a reputation for making the world safe for mirth. Assisting the well known comedian in various and sundry duties will be found Florence Rayfield, Bert Lewis, Rupert Darrell, Peter Macarther, Nell O'Connell and others, not forgetting the chorus of demure and beautiful dancing maids which have been aptly termed "The Sixteen Sweet Sixteen".
The original scenic production has been retained in its entirety and the production will be seen here exactly as when presented in Chicago during the past summer.
Prominent among the many musical numbers always captivating and melodious may be mentioned "Fancy You Fancying Me," "Since Hester Was a Pop," "The Knitting Gide," "Every Girl is Doing Her Bit," "The Dear Old Bronx," "Old Fashioned Girls," "A Lovely Crop of Girls This Year," "Where Did You Get Those Irish Eyes," etc.

The result of this eagle-eyed watching was to induce an understanding in me that there is nothing in the world that is so unattractive as that I dislike more than unattractiveness, the sort of secretiveness that makes a secret of its most ordinary movements, but on that visit I tried to understand it. They say that the thing that produces a pessimist is to have to live with an optimist. I suspect one thing that produces that secretiveness is living with people who are always asking you unnecessary questions about your affairs.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. Soda strong liquids, if used, are best not to take calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

PETEY DINK—PETEY SAW MANY GOOD POINTS IN THE PARADE.

"And you will not lose faith in me?" she questioned earnestly. "It will not lower your belief in my womanhood?"

"Nothing could do that, Miss Dorothy. I want you to realize the depth of my interest and respect. Your friendliness has meant much to me, and I would never urge you to lower your ideals. But we must face this situation as it is. We possess but two weapons of defense—deceit or force. A resort to the latter is at present impossible. I cannot conceive that you are lowering yourself in any way by using the power you possess to escape violence."

"The power I possess?"

"Yes—beauty and wit. These are your weapons, and most effective ones. You can play with Estada and defeat him—temporarily, at least. I confess there is danger in such a game—he is a wild beast, and his evil nature may overcome his discretion. Take this pistol. Keep it hidden about your person, but use it only when all else fails. You retain faith in me?"

"Implicitly."

"And pledge yourself to your part, leaving me to attend to mine?"

Her two hands clasped my fingers, her eyes uplifted.

"Geoffrey Carlyle, I have always believed in you, and now, after the sacrifice you have made to serve me, I can refuse you nothing you ask. I will endeavor to accomplish all your requests of me. God knows how I hate the task; but—but I will do my best. Only—only," her voice sank, "if the beast lays hands on me he—he pays the price. I could not do otherwise. Geoffrey Carlyle—I am a fair-fax."

Satisfied with my mission and confident nothing more need be said, I arose to my feet.

"Then we can do nothing further until I learn the disposition of the crew," I said quietly. "Estada is not likely to resort to extreme measures at present. That is why I believe you are comparatively safe now—his own position of command is in the balance."

"I will see you again?"

"Perhaps not here; it is too dangerous; but I will find means to communicate with you. Good-by."

We stood with hands clasped in the darkness. I thought she was going to speak again, but the words failed to come. Then suddenly, silently the door opened a mere crack, letting in a gleam of yellow light from the main cabin, while the crouching figure of a man, like a gliding shadow slipped through the aperture, closing the door behind him as softly as he had opened it. I heard her catch her breath and felt her hands grasp my sleeve, but I never stirred.

Who could he be? What might be the purpose of his entrance? But one answer occurred to me—Pedro Estada, driven by unbridled passions to attack the girl. I thrust her behind me, and took a step forward, with body poised for action. I was unarmed, but cared little for that in the swift desire to come to hand grips with the brute. I could hear him now, slowly and cautiously feeling his way toward us through the darkness.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Murder on Board.

To be certain of free space I extended one hand and my fingers came into unexpected contact with the back of a chair. Without moving my body I grasped this welcome weapon of defense and swung it above my head. Whoever the intruder creeping upon us might prove to be, he was certainly an enemy, actuated by some foul purpose, and no doubt armed. To strike him down as quickly and silently as possible was therefore the plain duty of the moment. I had no other thought.

The slowness with which he groped his way forward indicated unfamiliarity with the apartment, although, his direct advance proclaimed some special purpose. Clearly he had no fear of attack. I could determine almost his exact position as, his advancing foot felt cautiously along the deck. He came forward inch by inch. I measured the distance as indicated by faint, shuffling sounds.

I could not see but I knew. With all my force I struck. Blindly as it had been delivered the blow hit fair; there was a thud, an inarticulate groan, and the fall of a body upon the floor—beyond that nothing. I waited breathlessly listening for the slightest movement. I felt Dorothy touch my shoulder and caught the sound of her voice trembling at my ear.

"What is it? What did you do?"

"I struck him with a chair; he lies there on the deck. Wait where you are."

I bent over and touched him. The fellow lay in a heap with no perceptible heart-beat, no semblance of breathing. My fingers sought his face, and I could scarcely suppress a cry of surprise—he was not Estada. Who, then, was he? What could have been his purpose in thus invading this stateroom? All I could grasp was the fact that the fellow was a smooth face, long hair, and was a much smaller man. I dragged the body where the light illumination from the after port fell directly on the upturned face. The features revealed were unfamiliar—those unquestionably of a half-breed Indian. Dorothy crossed to my side, her foot striking a knife, which came glimmering into the narrow range of light. She stared in horror at the ugly weapon, and then at the ghastly countenance.

"He came to murder! See, his knife lies there. Why should he have sought to kill me?"

"It is all mystery," I admitted. What shall be done with the body? It cannot be left lying exposed here; no one would believe you killed him, and my presence must not be suspected."

"Could it," she suggested, "be dropped through the port?"

She shrank back from touching the inanimate figure, yet it required the combined efforts of both to force the stiffening body through the porthole. We could distinguish footsteps on the deck above, but these were regular and undisturbed—the slow promenade from rail to rail of the officer on watch. Clearly nothing had been heard or seen to awaken suspicion.

"If you should be questioned tomorrow you had best know nothing," I said gravely. "I do not think you will be, for surely an attack can be no plan of Estada's. It could gain no advantage. The fellow was pillaging on his own account; if he is missed it will be supposed he fell overboard, and no one will care. You are not afraid to remain here alone?"

"No," I answered, greatly frightened, "but shall I not bar the door with a chair. I have no key."

"Then I'll leave your half of my watch below must be gone by now. I'll take the fellow's knife alone."

We parted with a clasp of hands; as I opened the stateroom door and slipped out into the cabin. To my surprise the light over the table had been extinguished, rendering the cabin so black I had to actually feel my way forward. The lantern must have been put out since then by some confederate.

erate. After a moment of hesitation I found my way across to my own stateroom and pressed open the door. The hit of the knife in my belt attracted my attention, and I drew it forth, curious to learn if it bore any mark of ownership. light—it was the stain of blood, and my hands were also reddened by it. In that first instant of horror I hurled the weapon out through the open port into the sea. Blood! There had been murder committed on board, and the fellow I had struck down was seeking refuge endeavoring to find concealment following his crime. Ay, but what about the light in the cabin? It had been extinguished after the feeling fugitive had entered Dorothy's stateroom. Did this mean that the slayer had an accomplice? If so, then the killing was not the result of a mere personal quarrel amidships, or in the forecastle, but the result of some conspiracy. I thought of Sanchez, and of Estada's plan to obtain control of the ship. Could this be its culmination? And was the Standard already lying dead in his cabin?

Nothing came of my thought—only confusion; nor did I dare investigate for fear of becoming more deeply involved in the tragedy. No, there was nothing to be done; my safety, and the safety of the girl depended on our apparent ignorance of what had occurred. Convinced myself of this, I washed the blood stains from my hands and lay down in the bunk fully dressed to await my call.

Dinner Stories

The moving picture director was having trouble in getting one of the scenes right. The girl was supposed to resist an attempt to kiss her, but the rehearsal was far from satisfactory.

"Think now," said the director in coaching her, "haven't you ever tried to stop a young man from kissing you?"

"No," was the girl's frank reply.

Pauline Frederick is fond of telling a story about one of the picture plays in which she took part. It was a murder mystery drama, leading up to the grand scene where the judge puts the black preparatory to sentencing the unfortunate prisoner to death.

"One day," Miss Frederick said, "I went to see myself perform in this film in one of the small moving picture theaters where the orchestra consists of a single pianist."

"Imagine my feelings when, directly the judge pronounced his black cap, the young man at the piano started playing 'Where Did You Get That Hat?'"

Two navies were returning from a lecture at the parish hall to which they had been persuaded to go, when one of them, after a thoughtful pause, said:

"Say, Henry, I don't see no necessity of bringing us fellows all the way here to teach us about manners in the 'ome."

"We ain't so bad as that feller made out."

"Of course we ain't," assented Henry.

"Not by a whole lot," went on the first. "I never swears before my wife."

"I don't," either," interrupted the other. "I always says, 'Ladies first.'"

Tales of the Friendly Forest

You remember in the last story that Billy Bunny won the race at the Fair grounds with Old Brown Horse. Well, the manager of the fair, after the race was over, came out and pinned a lovely blue ribbon on the Old Brown Horse and gave the little rabbit a great big diamond horseshoe pin and then he said: "You can keep your dicky suit, if you like. Wagon that fine. Well, you can just beat the little rabbit thought so. And Uncle Lucky was so proud of his little nephew that he said he'd buy the Old Brown Horse for him, if the Old Brown Horse wanted to sell himself. But he didn't."

He said he'd rather go back to the green pasture and eat some nice sweet clover.

Well, after that the two little rabbits drove off in the luckymobile, and by and by, after a while, they came to the house where Mrs. Goose lived, close by a pond. So the good old gentleman rabbit stopped the luckymobile and Billy Bunny hopped out and knocked on the door.

And when Mrs. Goose opened it she was delighted to see them, for she was very fond of dear Uncle Lucky, and so was everybody. Let me tell you, for he was always kind to the poor and little children.

"How are you today, Mrs. Goose?" he asked, taking off his old wedding steppie hat and bowing very politely.

"Oh, I've got the rheumatism," said the old lady goose. "It's very damp in the house, and the kitchen stove's out of order and won't burn."

"Why didn't you let me know before?" asked Uncle Lucky. You see, he owned the little house and rented it to Mrs. Goose for three good eggs a month, which was very very cheap, for rent was very high in Goose Creek, let me tell you.

And then poor Mrs. Goose began to cry. "I didn't have any eggs to pay the rent with," she sobbed, "and so I didn't want to trouble you."

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, and he wiped a speck of dust out of his left eye with the point of his blue polka dot handkerchief. "Here's a ten-carrot gold piece. I'll get right down to the stove man and have him come right up and fix the stove for you," and without waiting for her to thank him he hopped into the luckymobile and drove away with Billy Bunny as fast as he could back to Rabbitville. And as soon as he reached the shop where the stove man lived he sent him right out to Mrs. Goose, and he gave her a good egg was Goose, and I guess the stove was mended right away, for that very night Uncle Lucky received a beautiful apple pie from Mrs. Goose which she had baked that afternoon.

"And now let's go home," said Uncle Lucky. So he and Billy Bunny went back to Uncle Luck's place and pretty soon after that the pie came, which was almost as good as you about, and both the little rabbits sat down and ate it up before they had their supper.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire. There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today at any drugstore, and you will see results from the right treatment. TISSUE BUILDING

Tissue is the doctor's name for body cells. It is to our bodies what coal is to an engine. Every day we burn up a certain amount of tissue. Therefore new tissue must be built to take the place of the lost fuel.

The food we eat makes this new tissue and in a healthy person gives enough fuel to replace the loss. People get thin and "run down" because they do not get enough nourishment from their food to supply the needed fuel.

When the weakened system does not do its duty you must have a "tissue builder." Father John's Medicine is a real tissue builder because it actually makes new flesh and tissue.

When you take Father John's Medicine, the actual food elements of which it is composed give you new strength, and enable the organs of the body to resume their work.

Father John's Medicine soothes and heals throat and lungs, treats colds, bronchitis, asthma. People gain weight steadily while taking it.

Her Clever Escape to Captivity

By Elsie Endicott

VELYN OSGOOD hastily threw a few things into a traveling bag, confiding meanwhile in a huge gray Angora cat curled up on her couch. Evelyn always confided in Patsy, chiefly because Patsy never asked senseless questions or kept murmuring "Is that so?" or "Oh, how too bad."

"We'll take our snowshoes and our heavy gloves and our worst boots. Won't it be fun, Patsy? And won't Aunt Mibs be boiling?"

Thus clad in her furs, her snowshoes tucked under her arms, she peeped cautiously into her aunt's room on her way downstairs.

"Where are you going with that bag and those shoes, child?" the matron of 40 inquired from over her morning mail.

"Over to Helen's with this borrowed costume and then up to the club with the crowd."

"Well, be back in time to rest up for tonight," and the older woman settled back to her task.

Evelyn sent the car back from one of the downtown stores and glanced at her wrist watch. Five minutes! Picking her way along the icy pavement she found herself at the railroad station just in time for the train she was expecting.

To the conductor she handed her mileage book and murmured "Westport," then settled herself down to watch the suburbs of the great city fly past and the long stretches of open fields and snow laden trees grow more and more frequent. Noon found her on the little unprotected platform of the Westport "depot," the chill northern air biting her nose. She glanced at an old bus standing near, then shook her head to the driver, turned and took the hard trodden road leading away from the town.

She glided in the crisp air, the deep snow, the very tingling of the blood in her cheeks. But her toes and fingers were glad when she turned in at a little white farm house and knocked emphatically on the door.

"Why, bless my soul alive, where did you come from?" exclaimed the motherly old lady who answered the knock, drawing the girl into the warm kitchen and closing the door.

"Pa, do come and see who's here."

"Well, if it ain't Eve," the old man ejaculated joyfully. "Bless me, ye must be cold."

Eve ate ravenously of the lunch set before her and then answered Mrs. Wilky's questions.

"Well, aunt Mary, you know what aunt Mibs is. She just simply insists that I marry well—considers it a personal responsibility and all that stuff. She's discovered a new man—a Chauncy Smith, the son of an old friend. Money, government commission, everything desirable, and his mother and aunt Mibs have arranged a party for tonight. He has two weeks and they are bound well, elope, or some other romantic thing, before he goes back to Washington." She leaned forward, dropped her apple core into the fire and shrugged her shoulders.

"Aunt Mibs will begin to look for me at about six and the guests begin to arrive at eight."

Aunt Mary laughed heartily and departed kitchenward to get supper. Evelyn followed and enveloped in a huge apron was helping lay the table, when another knock sounded at the door.

"Will you go to the door, honey? I must get these biscuits in," aunt Mary called from the pantry.

Behind the heavy wind and the whirl of snow that came in Evelyn heard a pleasant masculine voice—a strong, musical voice—good to hear.

"Won't you come in?" she ventured, at which aunt Mary appeared.

"Of course—come right in out of the cold," she seconded heartily, failing, however, to conceal the question in her eyes.

The stranger hesitated, hat in hand. "I thank you," he said gravely; "I arrived in town late looking for a place to board for a few days, and I was advised to come here. Can you accommodate me?"

Aunt Mary glanced at Evelyn, and hesitated. "Why, yes, if you are willing to put up with what we have. We do take boarders in the summer, and one of our guests has come back now for a few days. This is Evelyn Osgood, Mr. —"

For a moment the stranger did not answer; then he supplied shortly, "Robert English."

Evelyn smiled. "You see, to be a boarder here in the winter is to be enlisted in the service of the house," and looking at him frankly she caught a curious answering gleam in his eye.

A week passed. A week of snow-shoeing mornings, sleighing afternoons and corn-popping, nut-cracking evenings—a week of unfeigned pleasure to both—a week of which both knew in their hearts the inevitable result.

The night before Evelyn's departure English came into the room and sat down by the fire opposite her.

"May I ride back to town with you tomorrow?" he asked.

"Why, of course; I shall be glad."

She tossed him an apple, and the glow of the fire bronzed the wind-colored cheeks, and touched her hair.

Suddenly the man leaned forward.

Evelyn, why did you come here now?" She looked at him frankly. "To escape."

"Me," he finished. Drawing a daily paper from his pocket he gravely passed it across to her. Startling headlines proclaimed the mysterious disappearance of two young society personages, and underneath were the pictures. The girl, of course, was herself; the other Chauncy Smith, written unmistakably under; but the picture was that of Robert English.

"Did you run away, too?" she looked up.

"I did, too," he answered.

Some New Funnybone Ticklers

By Contributors

What It Proved.

YOUNG lady who prided herself on her energy and capabilities was one day talking to a neighbor at dinner of her various occupations. "I can play the piano and trim a hat with equal ability," she asserted rather boastfully.

"Your energy does you credit," replied the listener, politely.

"I can cook, mend, read German, speak French."

"German literature furnishes a large field of study, does it not?" said the victim of these confidences, hoping to turn the conversation; but the flood was not to be stayed.

"In short," the boaster went on, "I can do anything I undertake."

The other had lost patience. "Ah, that proves one thing only—that you have excellent judgment!"

"What do you mean?" the young lady asked.

"In undertaking nothing you can not do!" was the reply.

Unusual.

The captain and the mate on board the Pretty Polly were at loggerheads. They scowled whenever they met, and seized opportunities of scoring off each other with fearful glee. Each took a turn at making the day's entries in the log-book, and the mate, when making his entries, was very surprised to find in the captain's hand-writing, the words:

"June 24, 1917—Mate drunk."

He stared at it with a wrathful moment, then a slow grin broke over his face. He took his pen and wrote:

"June 3rd, 1917—Captain sober."

Not That Far.

Two Englishmen who had been bosom friends went to America. They met with poor success, drifted apart, and one finally took a position as waiter in a cheap restaurant. He hadn't been there long before his friend announced, at dinner. The meeting was not over-joyful.

"Why, old man, you down to a waiter, eh? Gracious, how you have fallen! And in a restaurant like this, too?"

"Yes," replied the waiter, turning to his friend, sarcastically; "but I don't eat here, thank goodness."

So Did He.

The other evening George Robey was walking towards the Hippodrome when a powerful man whom he did not know came up from behind, slapped him heavily on the shoulder, and exclaimed:

"Well, how goes it, Dicky, old man?"

Robey eyed the stranger and the stranger eyed Robey, and then the

"Oh, sorry; thought you were someone else."

"I wish I had been," said Robey as he departed, hunching up the injured shoulder.

Neither Satisfied.

This is the way a certain commercial traveler received a lesson in manners. He called at a business office and saw nobody but a prepossessing though capable-looking young woman.

"Where's the boss?" he asked, abruptly.

"What's your business?" she asked, politely.

"None of yours!" he snapped. "I've got a proposition to lay before this firm, and I want to talk to somebody about it."

"And you would rather talk to a gentleman?"

"Yes."

"Well," answered the young woman, smiling sweetly, "so would I. But it seems that it's impossible for either one of us to have our wish, so we'll have to make the best of it. State your business, please!"

Bessie's Idea.

Bessie had just received a bright new penny and was starting out to invest in a strawberry ice cream.

"Why don't you give your money to the missionaries?" asked the minister, who was calling at the house.

"I thought about that," said Bessie, "but I think I will buy the ice cream for myself and let the ice cream man give the money to the missionaries."

Here, Men.

A shrewdly dressed woman was sitting in a tram, when a quiet-looking soldier in gaiting in accidentally trod on her dress.

She talked at him for about ten minutes and wound up by saying:

"A gentleman would have apologized."

Saluting, the young man bowed and said:

"A lady would have given me a chance."

"I want a nice book for an invalid." "Would you like, perhaps, something religious?" "No; he's convalescent."

The Proper Thing.

"Darling," she whispered impulsively, "what would you do if I should die?" "Call an undertaker, angel," responded the semiheartless thing.

NOTICE!

To Farm Owners in the Vicinity of Janesville

Your farm is worth much more money fenced now than unfenced, for as you know, the milk and cream check is now much larger, and pigs these days when you turn them into bank accounts.

There is a big difference in fences.

We can show you just why that is and just how the Apex Fences work on hills and hollows. It takes only two minutes to demonstrate. Ask to be shown this fence, for it means money and satisfaction to you.

Apex Fences—the fence with the "swinging joint"—will be sold in Janesville solely by us this year. Prices are now established for spring trade, and you will find our prices right. We have a fence for every purse and every purpose. Can sell you a complete steel fence, posts and all, that will give you the best that money can buy.

The manufacturers could not make up the usual large stocks of fencing for spring use because the Government only released the material late in the year. We recommend, therefore, that you estimate now the amount of fence and wire you will need, and see us about it without delay—don't wait till the rush of filling spring orders begins but have your fence ready to build it then.

HIS DEMOTION MAY BE INVESTIGATED

Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell.

The Republicans threaten to investigate many acts of the Democrats when congress reconvenes this summer. One of these is the demotion by the war department of Samuel T. Ansell from brigadier general to lieutenant colonel, after Ansell had exposed the activities of certain higher up court martial officials in the army.

Voice of the People

To the Editor:—Reading the Gazette of Thursday evening there comes two articles on which I like to express my thoughts, to the public. Both will be on visiting. I read on the fifth page at my first glance at the paper the gruesome discovery of the dead body of a woman who lived alone on Park street. The paper states she had been in the employ at one of our restaurants and faithful to her work until February 8.

It was claimed her body had been dead for several weeks. Now when I read that I could not help but think, and give my opinion of the neighborhood she lived in. Let us all visit our neighbors more and meet them with a pleasant smile, there would be could, not such a gruesome thing happen in our city. Even if this strange that her neighbors did not notice, when she didn't go back and forth anymore to her daily work. Even the curtains drawn did not arouse them to the fact that something must be wrong. We all practice neighborly love too little, and the advice of our Savior, Love thy neighbor as thyself.

Another point I must speak of before I finish I don't like the doing of the details of advertising this unfortunate woman's home in a paper of over 7,000 readers. That don't speak well for our city at the present. This again gives many the thought, our money is wanted, otherwise no one looks after us. As the rent was due, and not coming, there was suspicion aroused, and investigation made, the poor woman was found, (and not any more) to pay her rent. Oh! A sad sight for those who found her, left alone to live and die, not a one to look after her.

Next point is: We are having drives for clothes to send to sufferers in foreign countries and here I read in our own city, a poor woman had to cover herself with rags. And why the 20 coats on the floor? And whiskey bottle and beer bottles strewn around, with burnt matches, looks suspicious to me! I hope we all take a lesson of this happening.

pening. Let us be more interested in the welfare of our neighbors, let us not feel above them, but be friendly. Let us not allow such a thing to happen in our city with so many different women societies for good work, and a visiting nurse besides.

The other article is, the visits to the schools next week by our superintendent, H. H. Faust. A fine idea, of which I have once before mentioned, this winter in the Voice of the People. Our schools should be visited more by the parents, so they get an idea where their children spend their time, and what they are doing, while away from home. Get acquainted with teachers and their classwork as it is carried on, everyday. Now I hope we will co-operate, visiting the neighbors, and visit the schools more in the future.

The prices which are quoted below are as nearly accurate as possible, although they may vary it is owing to the prices paid by individual buyers for various commodities for which they may feel a particular need.

Ancient Needlework.
The early Britons were expert needleworkers, and the earliest (British) Church of England before the fifteenth century won fame from its "hand-maidens of the church," who made linen and altar frontals for numerous churches in Europe. Tapestry, the work of queens like Matilda and nobles, ladies in olden times, was largely needlework.

The Road Ahead For Rock County Folks

As announced in this paper Saturday I want to lay before the farmers of Rock County, and other taxpayers as well, some very plain facts in regard to the road situation in our county and the proposition to issue $1,500,000 of 5 per cent 20-year bonds to build a 100-mile system of concrete.

I assume (and in this I am quite sure I am correct) that we are all agreed that any financial plan that will give us usable roads at less cost than our present gravel roads which are continually going to pieces, is a plan which we should adopt.

It is our belief that the proposed bond issue provides this plan. It is in substance, a lever which can be used to throw our road over from an expense to a saving, and make that saving sufficient to more than cover the cost of the lever and still have our road win the saving column after they have been paid for.

In support to this statement I shall present definite figures as to the manner in which the bonds will be issued now the proceeds will be applied towards completing the system within five years, and how principal and interest will be met, in such a way as to practically lessen rather than increase our highway costs.

I am going to present those figures tomorrow, and I want you to keep them in your minds during the remainder of the week, while you are considering other points that I shall bring out. For one thing, I shall endeavor to show why and how the farmer who is not located directly on the main road will receive a benefit that he can receive in no other way than by building one trunk line first, thereby concentrating heavy traffic on those roads to the relief of secondary roads, and giving us an opportunity to apply more funds to the construction and upkeep of our secondary roads, and by all means don't forget there will be no abutting property tax and the laws now setting aside virtually one-half of the state and county highway funds and 25 percent of the auto license funds to the secondary system will not be changed or in any way affected by the bond issue. We propose to use only those funds for the payment of the construction and liquidation of the bonds for the proposed 100-mile system of concrete roads that will be available for the construction of gravel roads on the same system in the next 20 years. In other words we are taking nothing off of the secondary system but heavy travel, thereby insuring better roads there.

In the course of these talks, any point that should not be entirely clear, a request to me by letter addressed in care of the Rock County Good Roads Association, Janesville, will be given immediate and careful attention. We vote next Tuesday, and the matter is of such vital interest to all that no time should be lost in getting all facts straight.

Tomorrow—Financial Facts About the Bonds.

Chairman Rock County Board of Supervisors.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Another motion picture actress was made this month. Have you seen "The Brand"? It is the latest Rex Beach photoplay and the leading part in it is taken by none other than the famous Kay Laurell. Miss Laurell is the very latest beauty to be recruited from the Ziegfeld Follies and her success on the screen is equal to that of some of the other fair maidens who started in Mr. Ziegfeld's famous show.

It looks as if the Goldwyn company thought pretty well of Mr. Ziegfeld's taste, for Miss Laurell is the second person they have chosen this year to play lead parts in their pictures. And by the looks of things she will be as popular as Will Rogers, the other star from the New York review, "The Brand," a powerful story of the west with its gambler, its dance hall girl, and its gold seekers, is a far cry from Miss Laurell's usual type of drama. In fact, aside from being her first photoplay, it is practically her first real part of any consequence.

BRIEF BITS

There is a hint prevalent that Norma Tallmadge, Clara Kimball Young, Blanche Sweet and Jack Pickford will join the stellar club of Fairbanks-Pickford-Griffith-Chaplin.

D. W. Griffith has engaged Richard Barthelmess to play leading roles under his direction for one year.

Because of her capable work in "Dance of the Vagabonds," Gloria Swanson has been placed under a two-years' contract by Famous Players-Lasky.

Pearl White's next serial will be from the pen of Robert W. Chambers. It will be taken from a series of stories which ran in a popular magazine under the title, "In Secret."

FOUR WHO ARE BACK

Captain Warwick, Irene Castle and Frances Marion have left and their uniforms have now all at work for the production of Paramount and Arterart pictures. Lieutenant Moore will also return with this company.

Testing Seed Corn By Allen B. West

These March days before the ground is ready to work are good days for testing seed corn. Then when planting time comes one can be assured of good seed.

1. It is the only way to be sure you have good seed.
2. Good seed usually means a good stand of corn. At least it is the first essential.

A poor stand of corn means wasted labor and labor is both expensive and difficult to procure. A poor stand of corn means also wasted land and wasted time.

How to test corn?
There are several different ways of testing. One of the simplest is the Rag Doll test.

To make the Rag Doll test procure a piece of muslin of good quality 9 inches wide by 60 long.

From the top measure off 18 inches and at 2 inches from the edge begin to mark off squares, each square being 2 and one half inches wide. Lay off two rows of squares and you will have 20 in all with 18 inches at each end and two inches at each side left.
Give each square a number from one to twenty. The cloth should be dipped in warm water and spread out smoothly on the table.

It is now ready for the corn.

The next step is with the corn. Select from your supply ears that have clear, bright, smooth kernels. Lay the ears out in order and take from each ear six kernels. Do this as follows: With the point of the knife cut the two ears near the butt, then turn the ear one third around, and take two more from near the middle of the ear, turn again and take the last two from near the tip. Be sure that these kernels selected are of good shape and in good condition.

Lay the kernels from the first ear in square 1 and mark the ear with a number one, but putting the number on a square of cardboard, putting a pin through it and sticking it into the ear, or by some similar device so you can be sure which ear belongs to square one. Proceed in the same way with all the ears and squares. Place the kernels on the squares with the germ side up and the ends all pointing to the same edge of the cloth.

The next step is to roll up the test. As you do this note the direction in which your kernels point and remember it. Fold the ends and sides that have been left free, over the filled part. The next step consists in putting the rubber band about the middle just tight enough to hold the kernels in place. Do not roll too tightly.

The next step consists in putting the roll in a pail or bucket and filling with lukewarm water, wrapped up carefully and set away to soak for five or six hours. At the end of this time the water should be drawn off. A wet cloth should be put over the top of the Beware of 'Compromises.' One temptation in making difficult decisions is to compromise. You aren't sure which way is the best, you seek to combine the advantages of both, and many a time, merely combine all the disadvantages. To be sure, there are times when a compromise is the wisest course, but there are just as many times when it is cowardice and weakness. How can one tell which times are which? Well, that is simply another decision for you.

Fairbanks-Morse Band Gives Successful Concert

The Fairbanks-Morse Athletic association band, Beloit, presented a concert at the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon which was fully appreciated. Encores were demanding by the audience, which made up for its smallness by its enthusiastic approval of the program.

The 40-piece band made of employees of the company, and conducted by Mr. Lhotan, gave a program which ranged from the heavy classics to the popular ballads. Conductor Lhotan played the only solo number.

THE QUESTION BEFORE THE PEOPLE

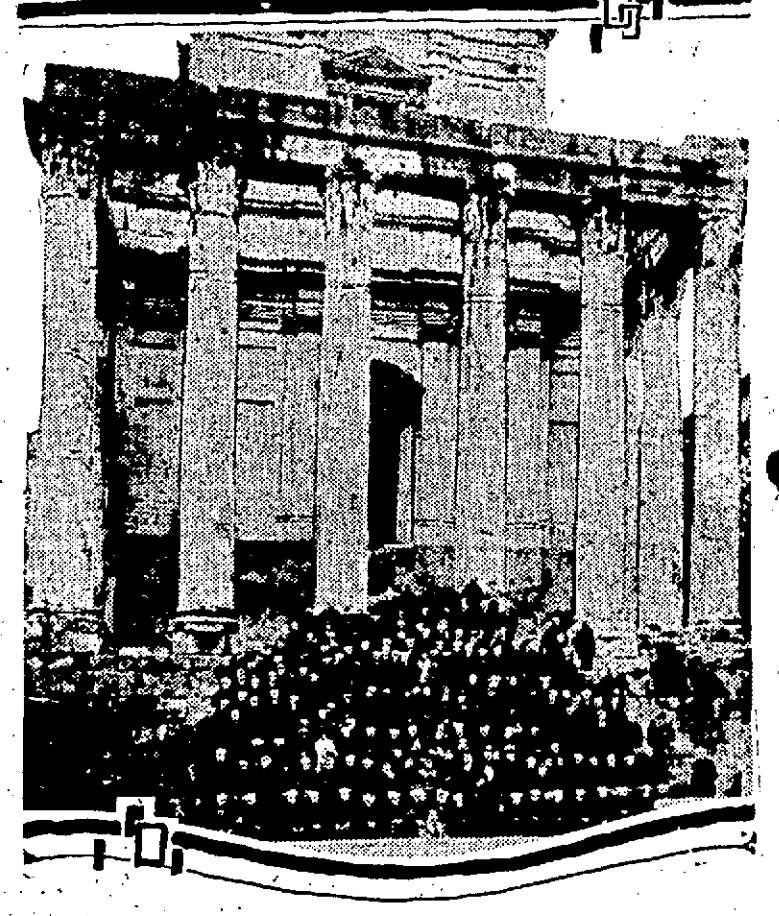

The law does not provide for a vote of the people as to whether a school shall be located. It puts the duty of location upon the board of education, and the mayor and common council. Our board of education has had the question of a new high school and of every possible site, before it for nearly seven years, and it has faced the requirements of new state laws. A school cannot be built now with a deep basement, such as all our present buildings have. Except for boiler rooms and store rooms, no basement can go more than three feet below ground. This means that space must be had somewhere else. And three stories is the best limit in height, because too much stair-climbing is bad, especially for growing girls. Therefore, the building must be spread over the ground. As has been had the problem of proposing the wiping out of blocks of homes and of vacating necessary streets to find the space required. Among many places considered was the site of the Lincoln school, adjoining the present high school, where the street between the buildings might be vacated and the adjoining lots bought at a cost of about $35,000. But architects have made it clear that even if the board were willing to crowd the new building up against the old, and have no room at all about it, it would be physically impossible to put it there, because the total frontage, with the street vacated, is only 200 feet, while a new high school, built conservatively, and just large enough for our present needs, would require a frontage of 250 feet, and about the same depth.

These questions the board of education and the mayor and council have struggled with, as their duty required. And the question before the people now is not the question of a site for the new high school. It is the one question, Shall we have a new high school or not? Yes, or no? Do you want Janesville to go forward, or do you want it to be a back number?

As one of the encores "Colonel Mulligan," a composition by a former Janesville resident, A. W. Knott, was used. Mr. Knott is well known in this city, where he had always made his home before entering the employ of the Fairbanks-Morse company, Beloit. —HIDE ON CONCRETE—

The American Red Cross Wants Your Old Clothes

This Used Clothing Will Be Used For the Needy Peoples Overseas

Dig Up All the Old Clothes Around the House and Turn Them Into Headquarters

Here's a chance to do a worthy and charitable act. The local chapter American Red Cross has been asked to secure a great many thousands of pounds of used clothing, which will be used in the liberated countries.

The campaign for securing this clothing is now on and clothing will be accepted at The Red Cross Rooms on the Second Floor of The City Hall until March 31.

Anyone contributing old clothing will be giving something which is not of much use to them but of practically untold value to the sufferers in the liberated countries. So act at once. Don't delay, but pick out some garments you no longer need and send them to headquarters.

ALL KINDS OF CLOTHING NEEDED

Every kind of garment for all ages and both sexes is urgently needed. In addition Piece Goods, Light, Warm Canton Flannel and other kinds of cloth from which to make garments for new born babies, tickings, sheetings and blankets, woolen goods of any kind—and shoes of every size are asked. Scrap leather is needed for repairing footwear.

Since the clothes will be subject to the hardest kind of wear, only garments of strong and durable materials should be sent.

Garments need not be in perfect condition. Many thousands of destitute women in the occupied regions are eager to earn a small livelihood by repairing gift clothing and making new garments adapted to needs with which they are familiar.
